CITY INTELLIGENCE. ANOTHER MURDER.

A Citizen Killed on the Chesnut Street Bridge. on Saturday night another assassination was com-itted in this city, and up to this hour the perpe-mitted in this city, and up to this hour the perpetrators are unknown.

The victim is a hard-working man, a glassblower by trade, who was engaged at Storm Brothers' glass factory. Market street, between Thirty-third and Thirty-jourth streets, named John Hughes. He is forty-eight years of age, resided at No. 8 Cooper street, above Twentieth, between Walmut and Locust, and leaves a wife and three children.

A gentleman named Brice, residing in West Philadelphia, was passing over the bridge a few minutes after eleven o'clock on Saturday night, with his niece, whom he was accompanying home to Twenty-third and Walnut streets. They took the north side of the bridge, and on nearing the centre, a man, the deceased, was seen staggering along, with his head inclined and one of his hands placed over the region of the heart. He appeared to be groaning, or enof the heart. He appeared to be groaning, or en-deavoring to articulate something, but the lady who was with Mr. Brice became fearful that Hughes was was with Mr. Brice became carrier and fragrands was intoxicated, and so induced her uncle to press on. After proceeding a few yards they were met by an individual wearing a white hat, who exclaimed, pointing to the deceased, "That man has been stabbed down by that lager beer house!" meaning the tavern nearly opposite to the Chesnut Street Skating

The alarm was then given, and Policeman Mul-hern, accompanied by a man named Joseph Douglas, proceeded to the spot, and found Hughes lying on the ground dead. There was not much blood on the garments of the deceased, but a small wound in-flicted by a dirk, or a similar instrument, was dis-covered. Sergeant Smith and five policemen, who had been down to Broad street, were at this time crossing the bridge on a car, and upon being made acquainted with the affair, alighted and assisted in removing the unfortunate man to the Sixteenth Dis-trict Station House. alarm was then given, and Policeman Mul-

Lieutenant Leech passed nearly over the bridge a few minutes before 11 o'clock, and the fatal act must have been committed between 11 and 11:15. Money does not seem to have been the object of the assassin, as deceased's pockets were undisturbed—he had out 15 cents on his person. A great many theories are advanced for the commission of this deed, one of which is that Hurches, was most by some of the of which is that Hughes was met by some of the Schuylkill Rangers, who were about in large num-bers on Saturday night, having had a dance in the neighborhood, and got into a quarrel, and was thus

A post mortem examination was held yesterday morning by the Coroner's physician, and it was found that deceased had sustained a wound in the left side, passing near the sixth rib, through the apex of the heart into the cavity. After this examination Hughes was taken home, and an inquest will be held to morrow. Previous to this occurrence deceased had interfered in a matter of a colored woman having a shawl stolen which he recovered, and to this act is attributed by many the fatal deed. Two arcs s were made last night, but the detectives deemed it prudent to withhold their names.

SUPPORT OF THE INSURANCE PATROL.-The Insurance Patrol organized in this city some months since has already rendered such valuable assistance as to secure a permanent support from the insurance companies interested in obviating, as far as possible, the losses resulting—during fires from the flooding of buildings by heavy streams of water. The following sums have been contributed to their support :-

A DIAMOND IMPOSTOR .-- A shrewd plan of imposture is now being used to dupe credulous citizens, and some have already suffered from its effects. We caution those of our readers who may receive letters similar to the following to place no confidence in its statements, if they would save their money:—

Statements, if they would save their money:—

AN UNFOUNDED REPORT.-Several journals of this city have circulated a report that Abraham Ritter, Esq., a member of the Stock Board, and an estimable tleman of this city, acted in such an excitable manner in the Exchange building on Wednesday last that he had to be removed to Dr. Kirkbride's establishment. We have the best authority for stating that Mr. Ritter was not in the Exchange building at all at the time mentioned, and that there is not the slightest foundation for this unjust report yond the simple fact that this gentleman was so disposed as to be assent at his home during the latter part of the week. The papers which have in-advertently circulated the paragraph in question we trust will give place to its refutation.

THE LATEST NUISANCE.-Every urchin you now meet upon our streets is armed with a wooden syringe, the water from which he throws upon pas-sers-by. We have witnessed, within a week passed, two or three ladies' dresses ruined whilst riding in our passenger cars, from boys, seated upon the curb-stones, drawing water from the gutters and throwing it through the open car-windows upon the passen-gers, and then running off delighted with their sport. The police should arrest every boy in possession of these weapons.

DECIDEDLY OBLIGING.—A party of roughs at an early hour yesterday morning went to a beer saloon on Fourth street, below Callowhill, and, after rapping awhile at the door, were answered by the rietor, who stuck his head out of an upper window. le was informed to come down, as the crowd wanted to kill him. Being of an obliging disposition, he did come down, and got well hammered about the head and body. One of the attacking party, named as Frederick Crouse, was captured, and after having a hearing before Alderman Toland, was committed in default of $1000 bail.

A LADY ASSAULTED,-On Friday evening about past 7 o'clock Mrs. Bowers, residing at Rising Sun, while passing along Germantown avenue, near Lehigh avenue, was knocked down by a cobble stone which had been thrown at her by a man who was going along the avenue. Her cries drew to her assistance Mr. Ottenger, a lumber dealer, who cap-tured a fellow who was on a dead run. He was taken before Aldermau Myers, where he gave the name of George Hitman, residing at Fifth and Dia-mond streets. He was held for trial.

THE VISITING FIREMEN .- This morning the mem-THE VISITING FIREMEN.—Into morning the members of the William Woolley Hose Company, of Boston, who are in this city, were escorted to Indepandence Hall, where, in the absence of the Mayor, the speech of welcome was delivered by President Mason, of the Resolution Hose Company, and the response by William Woolley, Esq. The visitors were then taken to the Mint. They will participate in the Lyle Monument ceremonies this afternoon.

A RIOT FRUSTRATED. - Yesterday about noon a A RIOT FRUSTRATED.— resterday about noon a number of fire companies congregated in the vicinity of Fifth and Vine streets, and engarest in a general row. Mayor Fox happened to be in the neighborhood, and on going to the spot, directed the arrest of several parties, who, at a hearing before Alderman Kerr, gave the following names:—Patrick Fearing. Charles Dilks, and Joseph Blight. They were held for a further hearing. for a further hearing.

SECRETARY BOUTWELL, as mentioned elsewhere will address the citizens of Philisdeiphia, at Horti-cultural Hail, this evening. After the adjournment of the meeting, Mr. Boutwell will retire to the Union League House, where he will hold a formal reception, at which our citizens will have an oppor-tunity to take him by the hand.

ROBBERY,-About 8 o'clock yesterday morning thieves broke into the surgical instrument manufac-tory of Jacob J. Tempel, at Eighth street, below Chesnut, and stole instruments to the value of $100. They succeeded in escaping with their plunder.

DEATH OF A POLICEMAN.—Policeman William J. O'Neill, of the Twelfth district died yesterday morning.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

Court of Quarter Sessions Judge Ludlow.

OPENING OF THE TERM—INSTRUCTIONS TO THE GRAND JURY.

The October term of the Court was opened this morning by his Honor Judge Ludlow. He appointed Joseph Chew, Esq., foreman of the Grand Jury, and the Judge charged that body as follows:—

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury:—

This is the day fixed by law for the beginning of the October term of this Court, and it is my duty to charge you as to what will be required of you during your term of service. In the midst of a storm at sea the commander of a vessel is not to be stopped and questioned as to the propriety of the orders he issues, either by his subordinates engaged in its management or by the passengers who sail with him. He is to be left to use the best endeavors his knowledge and experience enable him to make for the preservation of the ship and its precious cargo of human lives.

There is a carnival of crime now raging, and it is false to say that it is confined to the city and county of Philadelphia. It spreads itself to all our great etties. The battle rages more flercely than ever be-tween virtue on the one side and vice upon the other. The irresistible logic of facts has developed the fallacy of the system that has been put in vogue by the humanitarian ideas of the day. I have frequently been consured for being too severe

I have frequently been censured for being too severe in my judgment upon crime; but I point to the present condition of affairs to prove that the punishment and not the reformation of the offender is the true remedy to secure the safe'y of the community. Why, look at the present system. The convict, instead of being punished for his depredations upon society, is taken to the penitontiary and there, for his reformation, he is treated as a boarder at a hotel.

Much has been said against the extreme cruelty of the old criminal codes, but I tell you that in the end it will be found more efficient to check crime than this reformatory principle. I mean to punish crime, and I hope the passengers who sail with us will at least remain quiet while we direct the course of the least remain quiet while we direct the course of the ship through the storm.

And the great cause of the prevalence of crime is hand the great cause of the prevalence of crime is to be found in the defective fleense laws, by which hundreds sell liquor without a license, and every man who can pay fifty dollars is allowed by law to sell liquor to the public. This subject, gentlemen, requires your attention.

We are told that even life is not safe in this community and the interest Pay whe? No peake avery

We are told that even life is not sale in this community, and this is true. But why? No police system in the world could have saved Carter from the fatal shot that was given him at Fairmount Park. What vigilance could have saved the life of the unfortunate man who was murdered last night on the Chesnut street bridge? No power on earth could have staid the hand of the assassin that struck down Detective Brooks.

Detective Brooks.

And why is this? Because crime is not punished. Banks and savings institutions are robbed, and the thieves go scot free; pockets are picked in the street, and the pickpocket is not molested; marders are committed, and the murderers walk in the streets with much confidence in their own safety. The dis-honest of the community know that there is still power behins the power which executes the laws.
The moment the felon is convicted the Executive Chamber is besieged by applications for his pardon; and the petition is signed by the most respectable of our citizens, not even excepting clergymen. Here is to be found the great cause of crime; because the offender never knows that he is sure to be punished, in the rue sense of the term; he is only to be re-formed, and in most cases believes he will not even

I beg of you, gentlemen, to keep constantly in mind the grave responsibility that rests upon us, and do your duty fearlessly to the extent of your power.

CONSTABLES IN DEFAULT. Notice was given that if the constables of the various wards fail to make their return to the Court on Monday next, the District Attorney will be directed o proceed against them.

THE REVISION OF APPOINTMENTS. This morning the following petitions for the revision of appointments of election efficers by the Board of Aldermen, and the reappointment of other persons in the place of those who were disqualified, were presented and acted upon:

Second division of the Eighth ward—George A. Hopper, appointed canvasser and window inspector, disqualified because of intemperance. The spector, disqualified because of intemperance. The appointment of such men was strongly condemned by the Court. Hopper was removed, and a Mr. Forster appointed in his stead.

Ninth division of the 23d Ward—Leonard Hart, window inspector, was disqualified by having removed from the division, and George Hart was appointed in his stead. A large number of these petitions were before the Court, and employed their Honors all morning.

It was complained that on Saturday last a young man, who will be twenty-one years old on election day, applied in the Second division of the Eighth ward to be registered, but was refused because of his minority, and the advice of the court was asked The judges decided that he was entitled to be placed upon the list, because he will be entitled to a vote on the day of election. District Court, No. 1—Judge Thayer.

The period for jury trials in the District Court began this morning.

The only case before Judge Thayer was that of G. S. Long & Co. vs. Cheeseborough & Pearson, an action on a promissory note given for the price of certain oil stocks, to which the defense set up that there was a failure of consideration. At the close of our report the case was still on trial.

THE NEW YORK MONEY MARKET

From the Herald.

"The week which has just closed will be historical. as embracing a period of panic the most remarkable since 1857. When the great gold clique quietly be-gan their operations a few months since, they little dreamed of the immense commotion they were about to produce. Even when their corner culmi-nated a week ago Friday the immediate future of the stock market was an unknown sea, whose waters they knew not were to be upheaved by so fearful a storm. It is an undoubted fact also that the stock cliques who were on the bear side of the speculation, in their wildest imagining of great profits, fan cied not the depth to which the market was to be plunged. It was a time in which all sides lost money. Some lost fortunes—for the 'bears' were not content to remain out of their stocks, but loaded up midway of the descent and were swamped in the ultimate decline. Such a reversal of all precedents of Wall street was never known. The professional class of speculators were the heaviest losers. The shrinkage of values in the stocks which are daily carried in Wall street was not less than fifty millions of dollars—an obliteration of money which reached everybody. The story of the week will long be remembered in financial circles.

"There is reasonable ground for the belief that the worst of the crisis has now gone by. It is no secret that the shrewdest financiers feared the precipitation of a general panic by these disastrous occurrences. But here again we find not a repetition of rences. But here again we find not a repetition of 1857, but a more positive reproduction of 1864. In the former year the country was more susceptible of a panic, owing to the widespread system of State banks, whose redundant circulation easily paved the way for suspension when specie was demanded for bank notes. Last week the idea of a run upon the banks entered very few heads. Specie was not to be had for the money in circulation, and the currency in or out of bank was indexible in valuable. The only danger was to depositors in banks whose officials, in their greed for large gains, had taken the risk of loans on the depreciating securities of the Stock Exchange. In such instances, however, the first muttering of the storm in the previous week had been a warning that had not been vious week had been a warning that had not n unheeded, and there is reason for believing that few if any of our banks were lossers by unredeemed col-laterals. The crisis has afforded the most satisfactory evidence of the fact that our greenback system of currency is the best one which could be devised. Its stability in the wild fluctuations of gold shows that it has attained a consistency of value greatly underrated. When gold was at 150 greenbacks were nominally 67, it is true, but in general business their purchasing power was none the less. Gold, which by the operations of speculators had become merely a speculating vehicle like any railway stock, was traited beyond its real value. Had the gold was inflated beyond its real value. Had the gold bubble continued longer it would have exploded of itself. The world at large would never make so itself. The world at large would never make so wide a difference between our currency and gold. The latter would have flowed here in copious streams as the cheaped means of paving for our exports. The fact is, the gold "corner" was like the Harlem "corner" and similar operations. Had the Government pursued a consistent policy we should not have had the panic. Mr. Boutwell, had he persisted in his determination to let the market alone, would have received no blame; for the corner would have ended as did that in Harlem, by the disastrous losses of the shorts, but with at any panic or general devastation. Specy ative and natural causes would have remedied the matter. Mr. Boutwell's mistake lay in his interference at too late a moment, if he ought to have interfered at all, which is a mooted point. However, there is no action without reaction. The panic has caused great losses, but reaction. The panic has caused great losses, but only among the people who live by Wali street speculations. The crisis has not extended beyond the four streets which environ the Stock Exchange. The rise in stocks ever since the scrip dividend of New York Central made men's fortunes between Saturday night and Monday morning, and turned the heads of fortune seekers with envy. There has been a diversion of public interest to Wall street which was prejudicial to sound business. The minds of the people, in the city and elsewhere, have been absorbed with the news of the stock market. The financial column of the daily papers has had a vast accession of readers. But now the dream is dissipated. Fortunes can be lost as well as made had a vast accession of readers. But now the dream is dissipated. Fortunes can be lost as well as made in Wall street. Speculation is not so sure a road to wealth. The sultry atmosphere has been cleared by a thunder storm, and the prospect is all the fairer for it. The events of the week will work a reaction and revival in the more legitimate channels of business. Let the next session of Congress pay more attention to the financial question, and we shall avoid repeating the history of England in passing through a suspension of specie payments. The period of paper inflations has lost its dangers for us. The country is growing so rapidly that it needs a circulation not less than the paper affoat."

Mysterious Disappearance.

William H. Romie, formerly a well-known resident of Chicago, mysteriously disappeared from Central City, Colorado, last week. As he had a considerable amount of currency and about sixty ounces of gold, it is thought he has been foully dealt with. A meeting of citizens on Saturday night offered a large reward for his discovery.

The Baron de Riviere Again-The Baroness Comes Down on Him-Love, Money, Etc.-The Baron Proves Himself a Graceless

At the outbreak of the Rebellion, when all the people in the United States and England were in great excitement over the steps taken by the General Government in securing the arrest of Messrs, Mason and Slidell, Confederate envoys, and transferring officials, a French Baron and a noted friend of Mr.

Slidell was setting the fashionable world of this city agog by making a great love conquest in the shape of a Mobile belle, who, after becoming thoroughly infatuated with him, eloped to a prominent watering place. The Baron was constantly before the public, once as contractor for the Southern Confederacy, in the war fleet, and general speculator in the intestine struggles and calamities of the North and South, and next as a great shareholder in the guano islands.

in which matter ex-United States Secretary Jeremiah Black was involved to some extent.

The exploits of the Baron were numerous, and after meandering around the world he settled down in France, where, in the gay receptions he graced with his piesence, he made the acquaintance of a with his piesence, he made the acquaintance of a with his piesence, he made the acquaintance of a very wealthy and superbly handsome Parisian belle, whose abode in the Rue Montmartre was the attraction of all the nobility of the empire, It was not long ere his speculative propensities taught him that if he sucured the baroness he would come into the possession of a rich prize, and, therefore, with blandishments and lover's devices, he vowed to the handsome telle that he could not exist without her and at last succeeded, as she alleges.

without her, and at last succeeded, as she alleges, in seducing her under promises of marriage. After living as man and wife, it is asserted that the Baron induced her new-found love to dispose of her mansion and its contents and travel with him to Lima, to New York, and the lady, ascertaining his whereabouts, followed in the next steamer. When here she was at a loss what to do; but hearing that Justice Dowling was the friend and adviser of the duped and the unfortunate, she repaired to him for his assistance and advice in the matter.

Judge Dowling listened with patience to the long, heart-rending and pathetic story of her wrongs, and after some deliberation became convinced of the sincerity of her representations, and sent for Counsellor William F. Howe and directed him to take the part of the lady. Mr. Howe thereupon took the lady's deposition, which, in legal phrascology, is as follows:—

Superior Court of the City of New York:—Helon Stille, plaintiff, vs. the Baron Henride Riviere, defendant—City and County of New York, ss.—Helene Stille, of said city, being duly sworn, says that she is the above-named plaintiff, and that she has a good cause of action against said "modant for wrongful conversion and unlawful detention of 1967s and property arising on the following facts, namely:—ne summer or 1850, in the French empire, the above-named defendant then giving himself out to be a French nobleman of princely fortune, and then representing himself to deponent as an unmarried man, but being in truth, as deponent has since discovered, then a married man, and a common plebeism swindler hand common chemeler d'infinitive, by divers arts, devices, false proteuses and allurements gained this plaintiffs affections and confidence, and did by false, wicked, and fraudulent devices, debaunch this plaintiff and soduce her, and induce her to live and celabit with him as his wife; and having thus basely obtained ascendancy over her and won her confidence, did, by tr ck and device, induce this plaintiff to deposit with him for safe-keeping, on the 19th day of September, 1955, at the city of Paris, in France, the sum of 27,500 francs, in gold coin, and of the value of $7500 of Azzerlean money, belonging to this deponent; and said defendant, then and there, promised and agreed to raturn the same property to this deponent on request. And this deponent says that, having ascertained said defendant/s real character, she demanded the restoration to her of said money by said defendant, in the year 1257, pud repeatedly since, when said defendant abscended from France and is now in this city, and wholly refuses to return said amount of $7500 to deponent, or any part thereof; but said defendant has wrongfully converted said property to his own use and now unlawfull detains the same from this deponent at said defendan

Upon the foregoing amdavits Mr. Howe moved in the Superior Court for an order of arrest against the Baron.

The Freshet in Baltimore-Traffic Interrupted-The Streams Become Torrents-The Misfortunes of the Hornet-She is Again Caged-New York Money Market.

FROM BALTIMORE.

Interruption in Railroad Traffic by the Storm.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. BALTIMORE, Oct. 4 .- Trains due on the Northern Central and Western Maryland Railroads have not yet arrived, and none have gone out, Telegraphing along those routes is also interrupted. The Baltimore and Ohio trains from the West are delayed, but the Washington train came through, as did the Philadelphia train. The damages West and North will be serious. People in the flooded portions of Baltimore are busily engaged in clearing cellars, stores, etc.

Later Particulars of the Great Freshet. BALTIMORE, Oct. 4 .- The heavy fall of rain ceased a little after 2 o'clock this morning, and about 3.30 the flood in Jones' Fall commenced receding, and soon subsided.

All the goods in the lower floors of the stores in the submerged district having been removed to the upper floors, the damage sustained by the merchants is inconsiderable.

The first floors of all the houses in the vicinity of the intersections of Gay and Saratoga streets, Harrison street, through its entire length, and about the Maryland Institute, were flooded to the depth of several feet. The foundations of several buildings have been washed away, and the pavements torn up.

Rising of the Patapsco and Adjacent Streams. BALTIMORE, Oct. 4 .- The reports coming in represent the rain-storm of yesterday and last night as very destructive. Travel on the Northern Central Railroad has been delayed, and the Elk Ridge Railroad, from Annapolis Junction to Annapolis, is washed away at several points. The Patapsco river, at Ellicott City and Elysville, is very high, damaging the bridges on the main stream and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The damage to the railroad is not serious, and will all be repaired to-lay. The wires of several telegraph lines leading from the city are prostrated, and on some lines leading west the poles are washed away for a distance of five miles.

BOAT RACING.

The International Single Scall Match | Tyler Absconds with Brown's Money. A communication from the American champion carsman, Waiter Brown, to Barney Biglen, says that carsman, Walter Brown, to Barney Biglen, says that Brown feels consident of out-pulling Sadier on the Thames, England, next Tuesday. The money taken over by John Tyler, to match Brown against the English champion, Renforth, was lost by Tyler, who bet every dollar on the Harvards, and lost it. Consequency Brown and Kandall were penniless. Brown at once set out for London and borrowed £100. He put up the forfeit of £25 to row Sadier, and gave Tyler £50 to put in the bank until he required it to put up the second deposit, in his race and gave Tyler 250 to put in the bank until he required it to put up the second deposit, in his race with Sadier and Brown, and paid the board bills with the remaining £25. Rrown then went into training, and the first thing he heard of was that John Tyler had skeddaddled to Paris with the £50, instead of stopping and seeing Brown row the race and helping him through.

stopping and seeing Brown row the race and kelping him through.

This left Brown in the lurch, and but for the fact that he accidentally found a friend who offered to put up the balance, he would have had to forfeit to Sadler. Brown has not abandoned his paper boat, but will row against Sadler, the ex-champion, in it, on Tuesday, the 5th inst. The betting is in favor of Sadler, at 5 to 3, with plenty of takers. Brown, by his sportsman like manner and his style of rowing, has made many warm friends among the Thames watermen, who will see that he has fair play on the day of the race. Should Brown win, he can be matched from Putney to row Renforth for £500 a side. Regarding the coming race, RePu Life of Sep-side. Regarding the coming race, Re.Pa Life of September 13 has the following:—

"Both these men are now in regular practice for their match, though as yet Sadler has not arrived at his Putney training quarters. We yesterday had an opportunity of ir specting the new 'paper' sculling boat which Brown brought with him from America. She is a heautiful model, and amparently combines boat which Brown brought with him from America. She is a beautiful model, and apparently combines great strength with lightness, her weight, including that of her iron outriggers, being little over 22 lbs. Her dimensions are :—length 31 ft. 7 ln., the greatest width 12 in., measured from outside the 'skin,' which is composed of nine layers of Manila paper, fastened together with india rubber cement, the whole being thickly varnished and completely waterproof. She is covered fore and aft with a thinner coating of the same material in lieu of canvas. We understand, however, that Brown has not fully made up his mind whether he will row in her or in one of Jewitt's boats."—N. Y. Sunday Mercury.
